PORTRAITS OF THE SAVAGES.

The peculiar atrocity of the recent massacre has awakened a keen interest in the savage perpetrators. The following sketches of them will, therefore, be read with interest The writer saw and shook hands with every one of the monsters barely six weeks ago in their own stronghold They were then apparently desirous of peace, and those who visited their camp can only now realize the danger they ran in reposing confidence in such merciless beings as they have since proven themselves to be. It is highly probable that they even then contemplated their wretched treachery, and were only waiting to get the three Commissioners in their power before beginning their dreadful work. Hence they met on friendly terms all who came to them until they could entice the Commissioners within their grasp. The night of the 25th of February the writer slept in Captain Jack's cave, lying down beside the latter with a feeling of perfect security Since the dreadful news on Saturday the reflection that he did that almost makes his flesh creep.

CAPTAIN JACK.

Captain Jack, the chief of the tribe, and author of the villainous plot, is a full blooded Modoc, of about thirty years of age, though he looks much older. He has a good head, though like all Indians, the forehead is low and retreating. His complexion is dark, being a bright copper color, and his eyes are black, full and piercing. His hair is long, hanging down to the shoulders, and his face is entirely destitute of beard. His mouth is large, and his shape indicates firmness and determination, though it by no means denotes cruelty and baseness—traits which Jack seems to possess above all others. In manner he is cool, self possessed and very dignified He insists upon being treated with the greatest respect by all with whom he comes in contact, and the chief ruler of forty millions of people could not be a greater stickler for official etiquette than is this same miserable savage He never smiles. His greeting of his visitors on the occasion of the visit referred to was a splendid exhibition of indifference and haughtiness, notwithstanding at the time he was so ill he could not stand up. Before this out of treachery he was believed to be the soul of honor. Settlers in the neighborhood who had many dealings with him said that they never knew Captain Jack to do a mean or base act, nor would he knowingly permit any member of his band to do one. If any of the ruffians ever complained of any act of peculation or other annoyance, Jack was sure to visit punishment upon the head of the offender He was elected chief of the tribe two or three years ago, and Squire Steele of Yreka acted as judge of election—a fact which has always made Steele Jack's fast friend. He was the last man in the tribe who it would be thought could be guilty of so base an act—an act entirely out of keeping with his past character.

JOHN SCHONCHIN.

John Schonchin, a brother of "Old Schonchin," Jack's predecessor in the office of Chief, is a man about 40 years old. He is a lighter colored man than Jack, but is a great deal stouter, being broad shouldered and quite corpulent. His hair is long and straight and his eyes small and expressionless. His face is pleasing in expression and he is much less determined in look than the younger chief. Schonchin is a rival to the place occupied by Captain Jack, he believing that he has a hereditary right to the Modoc throne. Consequently he and Jack have not been on the best of terms, though in their horrible plot they seem to have worked together. He is the man who shot Meacham and inflicted the wounds from which the latter is likely to die. Schonchin, in all these peace negotiations, has been more exacting in his demands than even Jack himself. On the occasion of Steele's first visit to the lava bed, he was less friendly than any of the others. He even went so far as to accuse Steele of wishing to "talk with two tongues," and the latter had to make him a sharp speech in reply to prevent a recurrence of the insult.

BOSTON CHARLEY.

The man who shot and instantly killed the Rev. Dr. Thomas, is a young Indian about 22 years old. He is practically white and his complexion quite clear. Hence the name of "Boston" given him by the Indians, which signifies "white." He has no history at all, and gained no prominence to the tribe until the peace negotiations began, when he acted as messenger. He was one of the young savages who came out to Fairchild's with Steele and party to talk to General Canby about the 1st of March. The General treated them all very kindly, and their return for this is his brutal massacre. "Boston" was believed to be one of the best dispositioned Indians in the tribe. He was good humored, always laughing and talking, and seemed to like the whites better than the Indians. He was one of those indicted by the Oregon Grand Jury for the killing of the settlers, but he was known to have had nothing at all to do with that matter, being on the west side of the lake at the time.

HOOKA JIM.

This is one of the worst Indians in the whole tribe He was the leader of the band who committed the murders in December. He is young, not over twenty-one or twenty-two, but is large and powerful. He is not a Modoc proper but belongs to a band of Indians known in Siskiyou as the "Como Twashes" They are composed of remnants of several tribes, and have long been regarded as thieves and murderers. Two of them are in the lava bed—Hooka Jim and the "Doctor"—and even Captain Jack is said to be afraid of them. This Indian has a bad face. He, too, was one of those who came out with Steele, and was the only one that the Chronicle correspondent felt uneasy with, when on one occasion on the route he was left far behind alone with him. It was getting late in the afternoon, and the party had got ten miles to ride when they struck the "divide," a gap in the mountain to the south of Little Klamath Lake. There were five whites and fourteen Indians. Steele and Fairchilds led the party, and as they came out of the trail and struck the Lost River road, Steele put spurs to his horse and the whole party started for home on a gallop, the Indians riding along heavily armed with their feathers and fox-tails flying like so many pennants. They yelled and howled, and the party came down the slope like flying Tam O'Shanters. Something getting wrong with the Chronicle man's saddle, he stopped to fix it, which took nearly twenty minutes. Hooka Jim and Curly-headed Jack, and another Indian that it would not do to trust too far, seeing the correspondent stop, rode on a few hundred yards and stopped also. When the latter mounted he saw his own party fully two miles ahead going like the wind. He started on the run to catch them and the two Indians joined him, and all three went down the valley on a dead run. The Indians rode their ponies on either side and seemed to be highly tickled at the correspondent's somewhat unskillful handling of his horse. Then they began a series of movements, designed to frighten the latter and make him deposit his precious burden in the sage brush, and once Hooka Jim, with a yell, deliberately spurred his pony directly against the horse—a movement that nearly accomplished the desired object. On the whole it was an uncomfortable ride, and the reporter breathed much freer when he came up with Steele.

BLACK JIM.

This is another of the murderers of the settlers. He is a tall, savage-looking fellow, with a very dark, thin face. He is about thirty years old, and is one of the most desperate warriors in the band.

Letter from W. L. Adams.

PORTLAND, April 21, 1873.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Your Oregon City correspondent has discovered a "very large mistake" in the pamphlet on Oregon, where this valley is reported as containing "eighty million acres," and the Umpqua Valley "about ten and a quarter millions." In correcting the proof the "y" should have been struck from "eighty," and "ten" should have been changed to "two." This would have been just as I took it from Mr Small's book, without stopping to make the calculation myself. I do not regard the error as of so very much importance as your correspondent does, but I am very much mortified to see this and too many other misprints in the book. When I corrected the proof, I was suffering extreme pain caused by the recurrence of one of the terrible spells I am liable to, whenever I take a cold which settles on my kidneys. This will explain why a part of the errors were not corrected before the work went to press. W. L. A.

THE TERRITORIES.

A correspondent says that the Rescue mine at Warren's, Idaho, is paying handsomely.

North Idaho is jubilant of the prospect of the early completion of the Northern Pacific Railroad.

Chinese burglars and "epizoot" are demonstrating to the Silver City folks that troubles never come singly.

A case, but not a fatal one, of cerebro spinal meningitis, or spotted fever, has occurred at Silver City, Idaho.

The Salt Lake Tribune says: The dominondo and liquor sellers are being looked up lately, and the general talk is—$100

Operations have been vigorously instituted under the contract of Mr. J. B Montgomery on the railroad line northward from Tonino.

The Sunday law passed by the Territorial Legislature of Idaho at its last session has been tested and upheld by the Supreme Court of the Territory.

Idaho sends to the Vienna Exposition an old Indian pipe and mortar of stone, part of the backbone of a mastodon, and an agate two and a half inches long, and three inches wide.

A company of soldiers from Cape Disappointment passed up to the Chehalis Indian Reservation a few days ago, owing to Agent Henry having trouble with a couple of Indians.

The Transcript says. Mr. W. H. Theobalds, formerly editor of the Puget Sound Courier, has resigned his position of teacher on the Chehalis Reservation, which he has been filling for several months past.

A typo, Julius Andrews by name, who essayed to be a "gentle shepherd" last fall, and took a drove of cows to Gray's harbor, has had bad luck, a large number of them getting drowned, mired in the sloughs and lost.

Mr Garfoldo, we understand, will be in Olympia some time in May to assume the duties of Collector of Customs. Mr. Fred. Drew, who was removed from the office, placed his resignation in Mr. Garfoldo's hand some time in 1872, but subsequently, by a telegram to Mr. Boutwell, withdrew said resignation.

Rev. E. P. Hammond, the noted revivalist preacher, arrived at and preached in Salt Lake City on the 13th inst. He is on his way to California, and may visit Oregon. The Tribune says 75,000 persons have been converted under his ministry during the past six months. There is about half a year's work for such a man in our State.

The Lewiston Signal says: "Seth Wade fell from a raft into Clearwater, a short distance above Elk Creek, and was drowned, March 25th. He was a native of Chelsea, Massachusetts, and 28 years of age. He was one of the Boston party who came to this coast last year at the instance of the swindler Robson, and had since been prospecting in the Bitterroot Mountains."

The Olympia Transcript says: "Some time last summer, Mr. John Mills, who lives on the west side of the bay, about two miles from town, dug a well on his place forty six feet deep, without finding water, and it remained dry for several months. Soon after the earthquake, it was noticed to be full and overflowing with water, quite a stream running from it, and it has since continued in the same way. Query—did the earthquake occasion the change?

The Salt Lake Tribune says: "The Mormon missionaries from Zion under Apostle Smith have arrived in the Holy Land, and the Corresponding Secretary writes a very interesting letter dated 'In camp before Jaffa Gate of Jerusalem, Feb. 25, 1873.' This mission will, perhaps, correct in some points the Mormon history of America. The Garden of Eden has been located in Jackson county, Missouri, and Adam's bones were buried in that State by the Prophet Smith. But these Jerusalem missionaries have now found the place where the skull of Adam was buried in Palestine —also the tomb of Melchisedek. So America has got rid of that much of Mormonism."

The Seattle Dispatch of the 17th instant says: "Mr. Edgar Denny came to this city from California a few weeks since as the soliciting agent for a life insurance company. He was subject to violent attacks of neuralgia in the face and head, aggravated, no doubt, by nervous depression caused by a want of success in his business. On Tuesday he had an attack of unusual severity, driving him nearly frantic. In this state he procured a bottle of chloroform and retired to his room at the Occidental Hotel, where he was found some time afterwards in a dying condition. Dr. Calhoun was immediately called, but too late to save life—he died at 12 o'clock that night. There was no fact elicited at the inquest to indicate that the deceased contemplated self-destruction. The deceased leaves a wife and children residing at Callahan's Ranch, California.

Annexed is the report of the surgeon accompanying the Modoc expedition, on the wounds of the Peace Commissioners, received at the hands of the Modocs in the late massacre:

General Canby—A gun-shot wound of the left parietal bone of the face, tearing the skull and penetrating the brain. A gun-shot wound in the face, entering about the inner corner of the left eye. An incised wound of the neck, under the right ear, at about the angle of the jaw. The lower maxillary bone was also fractured.

Meacham's Wounds—A lacerated wound of the forehead and nose, fracturing the nasal bone. A gun-shot wound of the right forearm. A gun-shot wound of the left index finger, fracturing the bone A gun-shot wound of the right ear. An incised wound of the scalp, extending for six inches on the left side of the head; the result of an attempt to scalp him.

Dr. Thomas' Wounds—A gun shot wound, entering the right side of the chest, about halfway down the nipple and breast bone. A gun-shot wound in the backside of the head, at the right, coming out at the left side of the head above the temple, fracturing the skull terribly.

General John C. Fremont, whose name has figured with unpleasant prominence in connection with the Memphis and El Paso Railroad fraud, and who is now under sentence of nine years for contempt of a French tribunal, has found a defender in an American lawyer, resident at Paris, who writes to a friend in the United States

I again assert that, besides the unkind attacks of that fellow, not a word has been said, not a proof has been introduced, to establish any complicity on the part of General Fremont with those wretches. It has, on the contrary, been proved that Lissignol and Probst were the true and sole instigators of the monstrous advertisements which led to the subscriptions to the bonds and the consequent ruin.

A curious Trenton editor has figured out the actual per diem of members of Congress under the salary steal, and this is the way it looks on paper

The late session commenced on the 2d of December and ended on the 4th of March, a period of 92 days. Thirteen Sundays intervened, and both Houses adjourned over from the 22d of December to the 6th of January, which included 12 working. Thus the actual number of days was reduced to 67. At the rate of $7,500 per annum that the members received, it will be seen that the pay of each amounted to more than $111 10 per day. Now, it is safe to say that the average number of hours they were in session did not exceed five per day, so that each member received $22 22 per hour, or a little over 37 cents per minute.

What We Don't Know about the Modocs.

HEADQUARTERS LAVA BED, April 20.—Nothing further has transpired. We are awaiting the return of the cavalry. The Warm Spring Indians are scouring the country east of the battle ground, working round toward the craters which and the high ledge of the Modoc stronghold to the south. If the Modocs have fled to the east they will strike this trail, and the command will follow as soon as notified. Part or all of the cavalry will return to-night; then we shall know whether the Modocs have fled to the south or not. The Warm Spring Indians and cavalry will probably communicate with each other to-day. Col. Mason has moved his camp up into Capt. Jack's lair and holds it now.

THE LAVA BED PRESENTS A HORRID SPECTACLE.

Bodies are being discovered in crevices and under heaps of rocks. A sickening stench exhales, filling the air with sickening odors. There must have been many killed and wounded that we know nothing of. Our loss was six killed and twelve wounded. We have evidence of the death of seventeen Modocs. Their wounded must be in a greater ratio than ours, for the shells tore them up awfully. The ground is literally covered with broken shells all over the place. Three shells fell in the main ravine in the center of the camp, scattering them to the winds. Most of their women and children were removed before the massacre of the Peace Commissioners, therefore a large portion of them still live. There were about 220 men, women and children, sixty of whom could fight. Probably in the three days fight. Yesterday the boys captured an old squaw who was unable to escape. She confirms the death of Sconchin, second chief, who was shot by Meacham at the massacre. His hut is now in the camp, the only one there on that fatal day.

If the Indians do not make a stand, this country

WILL BE IN A HORRID STATE

this summer. Ranchers will lose all their cattle and be compelled to abandon their ranches. Fifty desperate savages running through these rocky fastnesses can and will work incalculable damage to property and cause a fearful loss of life. They lay waste the country, while the soldiers will be comparatively powerless, because they cannot hunt them. When they find them they will render a good account of them, but to find them is the trouble. We cannot venture without an escort, for we know not but every rock or bunch of sage brush contains a desperate foe.

The troops will not be idle. The Modocs will have no chance to rest and recruit their shattered forces.

EXTERMINATION IS THE WORD,

And not until the last one bites the dust will Justice be satisfied.

Mr. Hovey came in last night and will raise the remains of his son and take them to Yreka for interment. This is a peculiarly sad case. Young Hovey was a youth of exemplary habits, the sole support of poor and aged parents, who by his loss are thrown on the charity of community in their old age.

The country around this section is in a terrible state of excitement, and all business is suspended in a great measure. We are hourly in expectation of hearing of the massacre of some of the defenceless citizens living in these valleys. If the Modocs will but make a stand together in any place, we will soon have the last one, but if they scatter in small bands it will be next to impossible to get them.

LATER.

10 A. M.—Firing commenced in the head of Long Cave, where we were attacked by Indians coming down to get water. An escort coming in to meet a packtrain has also been attacked. The men were ordered to fall into their companies.

Light Battery B, 4th Artillery, is on the way here from the Presidio. They will act as cavalry. Battery G, 4th Artillery, from Black Point, is also on the way.

An attack is being made about one mile from camp. The firing is heavy and steady. It seems the escort is driving the Modocs.

10.15 A. M.—Firing has ceased. No particulars before the couriers leave.

LATEST.

A REIGN OF TERROR.

YREKA, April 21.—James Glenn arrived here at 8 P. M., from the front, bringing dispatches from Gen. Gillem, and also from the newspaper correspondents. He left at 10:30 yesterday. He reports being shot at twice, when four miles this side of camp, by Indians, but was untouched.

W. A. Hovey is on the way in with the remains of his son. The company who started out day before yesterday will also return to night.

The settlers on Bogus and Willow creeks are much excited, and are all preparing to move into town.

It is reported that three Indians were seen in the neighborhood of Bogus, a few days since, and others have been seen down near Picard's, on the Klamath river, supposed to be Modocs. At Crystal Creek, in Scott Valley, the Klamath River Indians were around,

PAINTED AND HAVING WAR DANCES.

They number 15 or 20, and are well armed. Whether there be danger or not, the people are alarmed, and one family has left the neighborhood where they meet do congregate.

Col. Mendenhall's command has been ordered to move by way of Shasta Valley, instead of Pit River, to headquarters in the lava bed. Several teams left for the front with stores of various kinds this morning.

The epizootic continues to spread, though in a mild form. So far, the Stage Company has lost but two horses. They make their regular trips but little behind time.

It has been windy and cold to-day. Quite a shower of rain last night.

The following named vessels are loading at the Burrard Inlet Mills At Hastings, the Maria Trinidada and Anita. At Moody—Dietz & Nelson's—the ship El Dorado, and barks Annie, Ara, Delaware, Amire. The Alaska is also at the latter mills.

A large lumber trade is anticipated during the coming summer on Burrard, in view of which Messrs. Moody, Dietz & Nelson are preparing, and have made arrangements to increase the producing power of their mills to about double their present capacity, by adding three new boilers and a 26-inch cylinder to their present motive power.

EASTERN DATES TO APRIL 10.

WASHINGTON CITY.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Assistant Surgeons Greenleaf and Ahell have been detached from the Department of the Columbia and California and ordered to New York

As supplementary to repeated interviews with Secretary Delano during the past two months, Senator Sargent has written and filed with him a letter strongly opposing the effort of Rose and others to gain possession of Kitchum, Amador and Bunker Hill mines and Amador town site in California, by reason of a pretended passage of title to the land on which they are situated, as school lands, under the Act of 1853, as heretofore set forth in these dispatches. Sargent argues the legal points of the case very fully, citing various decisions of the United States Supreme Court and legislation of Congress, and pointing out immense danger to mining interests of the country threatened by the effort to establish the principle involved, namely, that all the 16th and 36th sections of the public lands passed to the State in 1853, whether then surveyed or unsurveyed, and disregarding the existence of their mines and mining improvements.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Reports have been sent here that Secretary Delano contemplates retiring from office, having already prepared his resignation. The Secretary himself pronounces the story untrue.

The Atlantic Investigation

The New York paper of April 7th come to us burdened with the heart sickening details of the Atlantic affair Whole columns are taken up with lists of the name of those who went down with the ill starred vessel The total who sailed in the steerage alone was 536 of whom 406 were lost

This would be a shocking story be the cause of the disaster whatsoever it might it is much more shocking if it is the story of the sacrifice of so many lives through careless ness, neglect or incompetency of the officers of the vessel That such is the truth of the matter it seems to us few persons will doubt who take pains to examine the case in the light of the evidence produced in the official investigation which took place under the auspices of the Dominion Government The Government ordered the Collector of Customs at Halifax Mr J M McDonald to inquire into the causes of the disaster, and that gentleman in order to make his work the more thorough, invited Captain McKenzie an experienced shipmaster, to sit with him and assist in the investigation Both the government and the Captain of the wrecked steamer were represented by able counsel, and the investigation appears to have been conducted with a view to arriving at the truth, or at all events without any bias or prepossession against the Captain Indeed, after looking over the testimony elicited we are at a loss to account, except by assuming a very considerable leniency toward the Captain, for the fact that instead of some severer judgment the examining commission simply censured him and suspended his license for two years The evidence in the case discloses among other things that the master of the vessel having been running by dead reckoning alone for some days, in very heavy weather, had but the most general and indefinite idea of his whereabouts when the weather abated, not long before the disaster, that he had run short of coals, and resolved to put into Halifax for a supply, and was making for that port when he struck the fatal rock He testifies that he was aware that he was near the land, and that he suspected he must have missed his reckoning somewhat, because he had not been able to sight the Sambro Island light, which, by his reckoning, ought to have been in view for some time before the ship struck He also swears that he had never made the entrance at Halifax, and that his first officer was equally destitute of actual knowledge of the entrance, while his second officer had been in at that port but once To add to these circumstances by which it would seem he would have been admonished to be extremely cautious, all his charts, he says, had been lost. Here was a master of a passenger ship, with over a thousand human lives in his keeping, sailing into a port with the entrance to which he was wholly unacquainted, knowing that he was near a treacherous shore, feeling conscious, from the failure to see the light which his reckoning called for, that his reckoning must be wrong, his charts lost and he forced to rely solely upon his memory of their contents for his knowledge of the entrance, and yet he says he did not so much as cast a lead to ascertain the depth of water beneath his ship This omission of the simplest precaution against disaster so astonished the examining commission that they caused the question whether he did not cast the lead to be repeated, but Captain Williams answered again that he did not cast the lead, "because he was satisfied that in a short time he must come in sight of Sambro Island light" The weather was calm, the sea was smooth, and the light he was watching for is, in such weather, visible twenty two miles, but he refused to be admonished of his danger by the fact that he failed to come within range of the light, and his vessel, with its freight of human souls, went down when the mere cast of a lead would have saved her—went down when the gales that had tossed her for days had subsided, the sea was calm, and no one dreamed of danger.

That the master and his officers did devote themselves most heroically to the endeavor to save the unfortunate people who had crossed the Atlantic in his ship to have their lifeless bodies cast upon our shores by the surf, is true, and the investigating commission, perhaps, did no wrong to the travelling community when they made commendatory mention of that fact, but it is equally true and not less proper to be taken into consideration, that these people were simply victims of the captain's recklessness, and his gallant efforts to save their lives, when he had imperilled them, could not be counted a compensation for the result of his criminal neglect, as long as one passenger—to say nothing of seven or eight hundred—remained unsaved

Whether such a terrible sacrifice of life forming a fitting climax to the series of smaller disasters by sea, that have occurred of late, will cause more stringent regulations to be adopted for the protection of the traveling public remains to be seen This case alone ought to set the authorities as well of the Government as of the steamship lines, to devising such regulations When all has been done that can be done in the way of providing for the best construction and equipment of passenger vessels, there will still room for legal sanction In the way of the application of pecuniary and personal responsibility to cases of loss of life by neglect such as that of the Atlantic It is nothing to censure a reckless master, and say that he shall not sail into a certain harbor for a specified period. Legal sanctions that would take hold of his person, and fasten also upon the purse of the company that has placed him in charge of the ship would prove a valuable and most potent auxiliary to the laws in regard to the construction and equipment of the vessel, in saving lives of passengers

The Chicago Tribune makes an exhibit of the items in detail, showing that a person can make the tour as a first class passenger from New York to Liverpool London, Manchester, Paris Turin, via Mont Cenis Tunnel Genoa, Florence, Pisa, Leghorn, Civita Vecchia Rome Naples, Bologne Venice Trieste Padua Verona, Milan, through Switzerland Berne, Baden Baden Heidelberg, Strasburg, Worms Mayence, down the Rhine to Aix la Chapelle, Cologne, Brussels Antwerp and back via London and Liverpool to New York for $71 less money than he can go from New York to San Francisco, San Jose, Geysers Big Trees and Yosemite and back to New York, even though on the American tour the traveler should dispense with the comforts of a sleeping car

A New York dispatch of April 12th says None of the New York financiers seem to know of any successful negotiations in Europe to place the Central Pacific's San Joaquin Railroad bonds, though it is asserted that an effort was recently made to float $2,000,000 on the London market

Private cable dispatches announce the failure thus far to negotiate at London the new loan for the New York Central railroad, which stands at the head of American railroad securities. The difficulty arises from the stringent money market, the uncertainty of the price of gold here, and the fact that Vanderbilt will pay only a small commission

There is a general growing indisposition in Europe to increase American railroad investments on any terms, which is stimulated also by the growing tendency of American courts and Legislatures to hostile action against railroads where they are in conflict with the people and by the recent action of Congress also, by the Supreme Court decision sustaining the right of States to tax railroads' gross receipts

Pennsylvania's Constitutional Convention is discussing a railroad amendment prohibiting consolidations of competing lines, compelling railroad stock books to be always kept open for inspection, prohibiting such companies from engaging in mining or manufacturing for other parties or acquiring lands, except such as may be necessary to them as carriers, forbidding discriminating tariff for or against any parties, places or localities, compelling proportionate charges for long and short distances prohibiting interest by railroad officers in other companies for transporting goods over their lines, for fixing charters for combining with others to advance freights or engage at the price of coal forbidding the watering of capital stock or the issue of passes except to employes or indigents and establishing the right of a passenger to stop before reaching his destination and to proceed subsequently without extra fare The amendment is likely to be adopted substantially

General Canby

GENERAL SHERIDAN'S ORDER ANNOUNCING TO THE COUNTRY THE DEATH OF GEN CANBY—A GLOWING EULOGY ON THE DECEASED

A Washington dispatch of April 11th says the General of the Army has issued the following General Order on the death of General Canby

HEADQUARTERS OF THE ARMY AT WASHINGTON, D C, April 11, 1873—General Order No 1 It again becomes the sad duty of the General to announce to the army the death of one of our most honored generals Brigadier General Edward R S Canby commanding the Department of the Columbia was on Friday last, April 11th shot dead by the Modoc Chief, Jack, while he was endeavoring to mediate for the removal of the Modocs from their present rocky fastness on the northern border of California, to a reservation where the tribe could be maintained and protected by the civil agents of the Government That such a life should have been sacrificed in such a cause will ever be a source of regret to his relatives and friends yet the General trusts that all good soldiers will be consoled in knowing that

and in the execution of his office for he had been especially chosen and appointed for this delicate and dangerous trust by reason of his well known patience and forbearance his entire self abnegation and fidelity to the expressed wishes of his Government, and his large experience in dealing with the savage Indians of America He had already completed the necessary military preparations to enforce obedience to the conclusions of the Peace Commissioners after which he seems to have consented them to a last conference with the Modoc chiefs in a supposed friendly manner, and there met his death by treachery, outside of his military lines, but within view of the signal station At the same time one of the Peace Commissioners was killed outright, and another mortally wounded, but the third escaped unhurt

Thus perished one of the kindest and best gentlemen of this or any other country, whose civil equaled his military virtues To even sketch his army history would pass the limits of a general order, and it must here suffice to state that

GEN CANBY COMMENCED HIS MILITARY CAREER

As a cadet at West Point, in the summer of 1835, graduating in 1839 since which time he has continuously served for thirty eight years passing through all grades to that of Major General of volunteers and Brigadier General of the regular army He served his early life with marked distinction in Florida, and in the Mexican wars, and the outbreak of the civil war found him in New Mexico, where, after the defection of his junior, he remained in command, and defended the country successfully against a formidable inroad from the direction of Texas He was afterwards transferred to the East, and in a more active and important sphere, he exercised various high commands At the close of the civil war, he was in chief command of the military division of West Mississippi, in which he had received a painful wound, but had the honor to capture Mobile, and compel the surrender of the rebel forces of the Southwest

Since the close of the war, he has repeatedly been chosen for special commands by reason of his superior knowledge of law and civil government, his known fidelity to the wishes of the Executive, and his chivalrous devotion to his profession, in all of which his success was perfect

GENERAL CANBY'S APPOINTMENT TO THE COMMAND OF THE COLUMBIA

When fatigued by a long and laborious career in 1869, he voluntarily consented to take command of the Department of the Columbia, where he expected to enjoy the repose he so much needed This Modoc difficulty arising this winter, and it being extremely desirous to end it by peaceful means, it seemed almost providential that it should have occurred within the sphere of Gen Canby's command He responded to the call of his Government with alacrity, and has labored with a patience that deserved better success, but alas! the end is different from that which he and his best friends had hoped for He now lies a corpse in the wild mountains of California, while light ning flashes his requiem to the furthermost corners of the civilized world. Though dead, the record of his fame is resplendent with noble deeds well done, and no name on our Army Register stands fairer or higher for personal qualities that command the universal respect, honor, affection and love of his countrymen. General Canby leaves a heart broken widow, but no children.

TUESDAY MORNING, APRIL 22 1873

CITY.

NEW BANK BUILDING.—Bids were opened last Saturday afternoon, and contracts awarded yesterday for the construction of the new building to be occupied by the Bank of British Columbia. Months ago the Oregonian contained a full description of the proposed edifice to accompany which the plans as drafted by the late A P Jordan subsequently some alterations have been made to the original plans by Messrs Burton & Williams, architects, in compliance with suggestions made by the Board of Managers in London, to whom the plans were submitted. Contracts were awarded to the following persons Mr L J Jeffrey, for the construction of the brick work of the building; Mr. L Therkelsen, the wood work, including carpentering, joining, painting, etc John Gruber, contract for cutting stone; Thomas Huntington, outside cementing and inside plastering This bank building will occupy the triangular, fractional block between Front, Vine, and A streets Its dimensions will be as follows On the south side, along Vine street, 65 feet on the north side, along A street 51½ feet, width on North Front street, 53 feet, width on eastern end, at the intersection of Vine and A streets, 14 feet The structure will be three stories in height The first story will be devoted exclusively to banking purposes, containing a large counting room, vault, manager's room, and parlor. This story is to be 13 feet in the clear. The second story will be divided into a dining room, parlor, kitchen, hall, storeroom, etc. This story in the clear is to be 11½ feet The third story is to contain five chamber, two dressing rooms, hall, bathroom, pantry etc, and will be 11 feet in the clear This building will be among the finest and most imposing structures in the city, and will be constructed at a total cost of $75 000 It is to be built of brick, with stone foundation and cut stone facings The contracts have been signed and work will be commenced at once for the new bank building

PORTLAND ACADEMY CONCERT.—An audience of goodly size greeted the pupils of the Portland Academy last evening, and the respectful attention paid to the delightful entertainment throughout must have been a most pleasing compliment to the youthful performers The exercises consisted of an agreeable potpourri of music, essays, dialogues, declamations, etc A pleasant departure from the programme occurred when Mr S O Royal rose, and in the name of the pupils of the Academy, presented Miss Levy, the accomplished teacher of French and German, with a most elegant ebony and lookot. In a few appropriate remarks, Mr. R—— expressed the high respect and loving esteem in which Miss Levy was held by the students, and their regret at losing her. The lady was taken by surprise, and expressed her thanks with a charming confusion, which greatly heightened the interest of her scholars, who watched the presentation with eager eyes. Among the pieces deserving especial mention, we notice, "A Little Girl's Troubles," "Our Hero Dead," "The Model Church," "Don't Complain," (an essay) "May-Day Dialogue," "Christ's Resurrection," and a closing dialogue, in which among several young ladies who acquitted themselves with great credit, Miss —— Griffith enacted the role of grandmother with distinguished success. Mrs H Y Thompson presided at the piano with her wonted taste and skill, and Mr. S O. Royal conducted the singing, which was quite excellent. We hope soon to see and hear our young friends of the Academy again

DISTRICT COURT PROCEEDINGS.—We are under obligations to a gentleman who has kindly sent us the following proceedings of the Territorial District Court now in session at Vancouver

U. S. vs Pomeroy and Cardiff; indicted for cutting timber on Government land; fined $52 50 and costs of prosecution.

U. S. vs Thomas Monahan, indicted for cutting timber on Government land, tried by jury and verdict of not guilty, defendant discharged.

St. Helen's Mill Co. vs Knox & Hay, foreclosure mechanics' lien, dismissed at plaintiff's cost on plaintiff's motion.

Isaac F. Tobey vs Wm. L. Woodford, dismissed without prejudice at plaintiff's costs.

G. Elliott vs T. J Brooke; sale confirmed.

John O'Kane vs Charles Brown; contested election, came on for the 22d inst.

Geo. Thing vs Thos Preston; dismissed at plaintiff's cost.

Patrick Keegan vs John Bird, judgment by default for plaintiff in the sum of $232 and costs.

Jane Read vs Knox & Hay; sale confirmed.

P. C. Lugrin vs Taylor, Eaton & Green; motion to renew judgment denied.

Territory vs W. J. Bowman; jury empannelled and case now on trial.

DISAPPEARED.—We are informed of the following particulars of the somewhat sudden and unaccountable disappearance of a man named William Sloan, who has been fireman on board the steamer Calliope until quite recently. On the 15th inst. Sloan came down on the steamer, and in the evening started out to recover some valuable jewelry which he stated he had left a few days previous with a saloon keeper up town. After an absence of about an hour, Sloan entered one of the restaurants of the city where he accidentally met with a man employed on the Colliope. On being interrogated as to how he had succeeded in getting back the jewelry, Sloan replied that the saloon keeper had refused to return the articles which he had left on deposit. A short time after Sloan left his companion, stating that he intended returning to the saloon and compel the bar keeper to give him back the jewelry The two men separated, since which time, Sloan has neither been seen nor heard of by his friends This occurred one week ago, and no traces have been discovered of his present whereabouts The jewelry is said to have been valued at $200 There are some suspicions of his having been dealt with foully.

NEW WATER COMPANY.—In the office of the County Clerk yesterday, articles of incorporation were filed by the East Portland Water Company. The incorporators were Messrs. John Nation, S Kearns and Clinton Kelley. The duration of the corporation is perpetual.

The business in which the corporation proposes to engage is, in the introduction into and through the streets of the city of East Portland, of a supply of good and wholesome water for public and private purposes, the construction, ownership and management of waterworks in and contiguous to the city, and the distribution of water throughout the limits of the same, to dispose of in desirable quantities, at prices which may hereafter be regulated.

The principal office of the corporation will be located in East Portland.

The capital stock is fixed at $100,000, and the amount of each share at $100

ADJUDGED INSANE.—A man named Patrick Quesin was examined yesterday before Judge Hamilton on the charge of insanity. The physician making the examination pronounced the man insane, and an order was issued at once for his removal to the asylum. Quesin is thirty-two years of age, a native of Ireland and unmarried The cause of his insanity is unknown. Several years ago, while residing in Minnesota, he became troubled with an insane fancy or premonition that some one was following him with a purpose of poisoning him, or with the intention of committing on his person some great bodily injury. He partially recovered from this derangement until some weeks ago, when his insanity returned in an aggravated form and necessitated his removal to the asylum.

ASTORIA NEWS.—The schooner Ocean Pearl is still lying below Astoria, unable at last accounts to pass out to sea.

The schooners Lotitia and J L Foster are still lying at St. Helens Both have completed their cargoes of lumber for San Francisco.

The barkentine Whistler has completed all repairs at Astoria, passed over to Comentville, and is now loading with lumber for South America

NEW ARMORY.—Workmen are now engaged in putting the new armory, in Smith's building, for the City Rifles, in readiness for occupancy by the Company. Everything will be fitted up neat, tasty and in good style The walls are being plastered, and gun racks made It is the present intention of the Company to be installed in their new quarters about the middle of next week.

SCHOOL TO BEGIN.—We are requested to state that the school in McMillen's Addition will commence on the 28th inst, under the supervision of Prof. J. K. Duff, assisted by Miss Jane McMillen. This school is represented as being in a flourishing condition, about sixty five scholars being in regular attendance

W. Friedlander, opposite the Postoffice is engraving the names of the exempt members of Multnomah Engine Company for their new roll stand. His engraving is really neat and attractive.

LOST HIS THUMB.—A gentleman just from down the river informs us that Captain John West, of Westport, met with a very painful accident yesterday He was operating some machinery, when, by a false movement, one of his thumbs was caught and torn almost completely off His hand and arm were also considerably bruised by the accident.

MORE GRADERS.—Two hundred and eighty Chinamen went down the river yesterday after noon to Kalama. Their destinations are along the proposed route of the Northern Pacific Railroad beyond Lanion, where grading is now going ahead. These Chinamen embarked on board the N. Ferry Chief, which was towed down by the steamer Lonnie Troup.

EXPECTED TO ARRIVE.—Major Hawkins, a brother of Mrs Canby, is expected to arrive from the East on the next steamer Until his arrival it cannot be definitely stated when or to what particular point the remains of the late General Canby will be removed It is probable, however, that the body will be sent to Indianapolis for permanent interment.

POWDER.—The schooner Oregonian brought up among considerable quantities of other freight 1,500 cases of powder This explosive article was placed at once on board a scow when hoisted from the vessel's hold, and was towed up foster day by a steamer and safely deposited in the powder house situated on the river some distance south of the city

BOUND OVER.—A man named Jos Dougherty was arraigned in the Police Court yesterday morning on a charge of selling liquor to an Indian. The court, after an investigation into the case, held the defendant to answer the charge before the grand jury in the sum of $250

GRAND JURY DISCHARGED.—The grand jury, in attendance on the District Court at Vancouver, was discharged last Saturday morning, from further attendance on the Court. The present term of Court will probably be short.

SOCIABLE.—The ladies of the First Baptist Church will hold a sociable in the basement of the Church on Wednesday evening, to which the public are cordially invited.

ORGANIZED.—Last Saturday evening a Degree Lodge of the I O R. C., with twenty five members, was organized

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Mr. C A. Burchart has sold the well known Dem Saloon to Mr. W. A McCauley, who will conduct it in a manner calculated to give satisfaction to the patrons of the Gem.

If you wish to be photographed in first-class style, call in at Buchtel & Stolte's Gallery. Boson is there ready to take you in any position you may desire. Read their notice elsewhere,

We would respectfully call the attention of our readers to the "big ad." of W. K. Badger on the third page Special attention is called to the endorsement of M Paulus leader of the French Band. Be sure to read it.

There is nothing more neat and tasty than to adorn the walls of your parlors with handsome, elegant pictures. Those who wish to secure splendid bargains in the picture line, should attend the auction sale, by Oscar Killbourn, at the Art Gallery of Snow & Roos this evening Sale will commence promptly at 7 o'clock. Read the advertisement for particulars.

Having arranged their new stock of dry goods Messrs. Harris & Blum make the announcement of the new goods in our advertising columns The stock is so varied that it would be impossible to specify each new article. We know the ladies are interested in everything that is attractive in the way of dry goods, and when we say read their card, we feel sure the attention of the fair sex will be drawn to it. Messrs. Harris & Blum are too well known in this community to require an extended notice at our hands. All we have to say is to call on them and examine the new arrivals.

AMUSEMENTS.

The McGinley Troupe open at Oro Fino Hall this evening. For further particulars see street bills.

Some fifteen couples participated in the social at the hall of Hook and Ladder Co. No. 1, last evening Excellent music was furnished to which the small assembly danced until after midnight Though the attendance was not large yet those who were present felt satisfied with the manner in which they had been treated by the managers. The lateness of the season has a tendency to lessen the number of ball goers.

The programme of the concert and ball of the City Rifles appears in the advertising columns this morning It will be noticed that there is a host of volunteers among whom are the East Portland Brass Band, singing section of the Turn Verein, Carl Bosco, a number of youthful skaters and Miller and Marks, of the Turn Verein. After the concert the room will be cleared for dancing The affair will take place at the Skating Rink on the 25th inst As the attractions are numerous we have no doubt the first effort of the City Rifles will prove a grand success It would be well to procure tickets at once as the supply may be short in a few days

"KNOWLEDGE IS POWER"

No Power is so costly as that of human muscle, and fifty per cent. of the power required to run a Sewing Machine may be saved by using the "LIGHT RUNNING" DOMESTIC. It makes the "Lock Stitch" with the least and most simple machinery It, therefore, wears less than any other, and combines, with its remarkable simplicity and ease of running, great quietness of operation with a wonderful range of work from the finest muslin to thick Shoe Leather. Trial is a sure test of merit Don't fail to examine it, at their elegant salesroom, 34 Front st, corner Alder and Morrison.
W J HOLLE, General Agent.

The history of the past eighteen centuries leads to the belief that no matter how well you treat a shot gun, nor how you bring it up, it will bang the stuffing out of you the first time it gets a chance.

Last Saturday morning the locomotive, tender and baggage car of the westward bound train passed over a fence rail, two miles beyond Cornelius. As the train was moving slowly a terrible accident was prevented. No damage was done.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

The Board of Trustees of East Portland assembled last evening at the usual hour.

President Hawthorne in the chair.

Members present—Garrigan, Hawthorne, McMillen, Shattuck, Stephens and VanCleave.

Minutes of previous meeting read and adopted.

PETITIONS.

A petition was read from William Kerns, stating that he had expended the sum of $776 25 in planking the Base Line Road to the Lone Fir Cemetry within the city limits, which sum was in excess of the amount raised by subscription for that purpose, $17 50, which latter amount he had paid himself. The petitioner asked that the sum of $17 50 be allowed out of the special tax levied for street improvements. The petition was referred to the Committee on Streets and Public Property.

ORDINANCES.

The ordinance for the prevention of fires came up on its third reading. Mr Shattuck made some objections to the ordinance as it read. He thought it ought to be so amended as to require all chimney flues to be plastered on the inside, as most often fires which had originated from defective flues, were caused by the separation of the bricks and mortar, then creating seams and crannies through which sparks were carried. The ordinance, in his opinion, should be so amended as to require all persons to take that precaution. Mr. VanCleave moved that the ordinance be recommitted to the Committee which had reported it, with instructions to make some necessary amendments. The motion prevailed.

On motion, the Board stood adjourned.

OREGON.

Fare on the stage from Salem to Dallas has been reduced to one dollar.

LaCreole Academy turned out ten teachers at the last annual examination by the School Superintendent of Polk county.

An unlucky dweller on the Luckiamute had dear meat the other day when a Justice did to him mete out a fine of $20 for converting a deer into venison.

The men enlisting in the company of mounted militia to be raised by Gen. Rose, of Jackson county, under an order from our State Executive, are requested to furnish their own animals, saddles, etc.

The proceeds of the concert held at Jacksonville last week for the benefit of those who suffered by the late fire at that place amounted on the first night to $131 50 The programme was for three nights.

A term of the Circuit Court for Lane county is being held this week at Eugene City Judge Prim, of the First District, presiding in place of Judge Thayer of the Second, who is reported seriously ill at his home in Corvallis.

The Jacksonville Sentinel says. "Just now the sound of the hammer is heard in the burnt district, building and repairing. From present appearances it will not be long until most of the burnt district will be covered with houses again"

A mass meeting of the citizens of Jackson county is called to meet at Jacksonville this, Tuesday, evening for the purpose, among other things, of adopting some method for the protection of the settlements on the frontier. The Sentinel of the 18th says some action is necessary as the murderous Modocs have escaped from the Lava Beds and are loose among the settlements.

The officers elected by the Philosophian Literary Society of Christian College, April 11th are as follows: George McBride, President; Albert Campbell, Vice President, Lycurgus Jackson, Secretary; Jones Powell, Treasurer; Solomon Stump, Cor. Secretary, Solomon Stump, Marshal, W. Drury and A. P. Campbell, Tellers; Wells Drury, Librarian, George McBride, Editor; Solomon Stump, Door keeper.

Dowell, of the Sentinel, writing to his paper from Washington, says: "Senator Mitchell has rented a new brick house at No. 1,107 J street, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets, within three minutes walk of the White House. It is close to the residence of Attorney General Williams, Secretary Fish and Speaker Blaine. The house is nearly completed, in a neat and handsome manner. The house is small compared to some of the extensive mansions in this city, but it is plenty large for Mr Mitchell's family. He is now furnishing it at his own expense. He is to pay $1,500 a year rent."

We learn that straggling Indians from the Siletz reservation are constantly going and coming about the Yaquina Bay settlements, and that many people over there feeling insecure from there prowlers are preparing to leave unless something is done for their protection. These Indians trouble the settlers by their petty thieving and destruction of growing crops, etc., if in no other way The Agent says he is not supplied with means to keep them on the reservation, and so is obliged to allow them to leave the reservation or let them starve. We have the foregoing from a former resident of Newport.

The Dallas Republican of the 19th says: "Last Saturday R L. Fraker, accompanied by Messrs. Richardson and Shelton, proceeded to Salem with a warrant for the arrest of Charles Sutton, charged with conspiring with other parties to assassinate Glass. The trial commenced Saturday evening but was postponed till Monday in consequence of the prisoner's counsel not having arrived, and was not concluded until Tuesday evening. The proceedings created considerable excitement at the conclusion when L. Vineyard committed the prisoner in bonds of $10,000 to appear for trial at the Circuit Court. The friends of law and order expressed their highest approbation of the result."

George Buck, of Jacksonville, does not mince words in dunning his creditors. He claims that something is due him on the Oregon war claims, and sends the following to B. F. Dowell, who has the claim for collection. "Now, see here—I want you to get my money for me. I need it and want it, and you have promised to get it for me time and time again, and yet I do not get the money. This is not fair or honorable in you, or in the Department. I earned this money. It belongs to me, and I must have it. Here I go around like a beggar. My diggings do not pay, and the ball in my hip gives me trouble every winter, and you fine fellows in the city live on the fat of the land and have good, hefty times. This won't do. Get me my money. Send the money to the care of P. J. Ryan. Send it to me right off."

The S. F. Chronicle's Modoc war correspondent writes from headquarters, under date of April 13th:

By this post the following will be sent to Washington, to H. R. Klum, Acting Commissioner of Indian Affairs

SIR: I have to report that on the 11th instant, while this Commission was holding counsel with the leading men of the Modocs, by an act of unparalleled premeditated treachery on the part of the Indians, Gen Canby and Dr. Thomas were brutally murdered, Meacham left for dead on the field, and I escaped by running, five shots having been fired at me Meacham may recover. Rosborough was absent, having gone home two days previously. The Modocs are defiant and insolent, daily firing on the picket lines. Peace can not be made with those men. Awaiting further orders, I remain, L. S. DYAR.

It will be perceived that Mr. Dyar alludes to his own escape.

A number of dry goods boxes emptied of their contents led the public to believe that something new had just been opened, and upon closer inspection it was found that the boxes were addressed to J O'Neil & Co, So First street, who had but a few moments before piled up in their store an extensive and varied stock of clothing gentlemen's furnishing goods, and cloths of fine texture for the manufacture of spring styles in gentlemen's and boys' clothing

A Noble Hero.

The Halifax correspondent of the Boston Herald writes thus speaks of one of the many heroes of the Atlantic disaster

To look at William Hoyt one would not think him a hero But the truth is that but for his courage and endurance the death list of the Atlantic would have been greatly swollen The writer in close relation with the survivors heard the sailor passenger to possibly portion of his having saved many lives and thought it worth while to seek him out A path ring of three or four intelligent looking fellows was waiting to reach him with the remark I am trying to find the man they call the sailor passenger Quick as thought two of the men started up and their eyes glistened and their voices shook as they exclaimed together he saved my life If saved my life! The sailor passenger was soon found by the exclamation of those men who in their gratitud were eager that his brave deeds should be recorded His name is William Hoyt and he is a native of county Antrim, Ireland, although he has been in America several years being employed as a sailor upon our lakes He is about thirty five years old, well built, but not appearing to be markedly strong In conversation he showed himself to be an unsophisticated but good-natured fellow having strong sympathies for his fellow men, but entirely unassuming, and not disposed to talk of what he had done Why, said he I saw them drowning and thought I would save some if I could Hoyt crossed by the rope from the ship to the rock and had great difficulty in clambering up its treacherous, slippery side He saw others attempt it only to fall back into the water and drown The men were hurried on to the rope by the captain who was on the ship and many had not the strength to reach the rock and were drowned on the way, others reached it only to meet death with safety at their fingers ends Hoyt saw all this, and realized how much a man might do in assisting those who got across, and although suffering greatly with cold he had been for hours on board on the ship and had no clothes but his shirt and pantaloon He undertook the work himself He lay down upon the top of the rock and reached over its precipitous side, and as the men came across he caught them by their upraised arms, their clothing, their hair –wherever he could get a hold, and pulled them up to a place where they could stand It was hard work, and every time he pulled a man up he took the risk of being himself pulled down Thus he worked until his hands became so cold and numb that they refused to do further service, and then, instead of abandoning his self-chosen post, he just reached his body further over the dangerous side of the rock, and set his teeth into the coats of the men and drew himself back until they could hold on for themselves More than one hundred men did brave Bill Hoyt, the "sailor passenger," lift from the death below over that perilous way to the safety above, and it is enough to set one's heart a throbbing to hear some of those men express in their odd ways the gratitude they feel to their preserver It made no difference who the men were, whether from the cabin, the steerage or the crew, Hoyt lent his strength to all who came, and never stopped in his work until utterly exhausted Hoyt thinks that more might have been saved if the Captain had not hurried the men over the rope so fast, but believes he acted according to his best judgment In common with the rest of the steerage passengers he complains of the fare during the voyage Condensed water, he says, was almost invariably used in cooking, and the coffee, the bread and pudding (the one time it was served) were so salt that they were for the most part thrown overboard to make the sea salter.

Hon W A. Richardson.

THE NEW SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY — WHO AND WHAT HE IS

The Washington Star furnishes the following sketch of Mr Boutwell's successor in the cabinet

Hon. William Adams Richardson, or as he is more commonly designated, Judge Richardson, the new Secretary of the Treasury, was born at Tyngsborough, Massachusetts, Nov. 2, 1821. He is a gentleman of decided convictions in all matters upon which he is called upon to act in his official capacity, but, nevertheless, possesses a uniform amiability of manner, which has rendered him very popular during his residence in Washington Like his predecessor, he is democratic and thoroughly American in his ideas, and believes that the people have a right to consult their officers freely and at all times in matters affecting their interests

The Secretary is a lawyer by profession as was his father, he has two brothers who are also lawyers, and his uncle, William M Richardson, is Chief Justice of the Supreme court of New Hampshire He graduated at Harvard in 1845, and three years later received from that institution the degrees of M A and A. B. On the 8th of July, 1846, on motion of the late Governor Andrew, of Massachusetts, he was admitted to the Boston bar, and subsequently began the practice of law with his brother at Lowell He was for two years president of the common council of that city, was president of the Wamsut bank of Lowell, and also of the Mechanics' association for several years; and in 1855, with Professor Joel Parker and A A. Richmond, was appointed to revise the general statutes of Massachusetts,

The result of his four years' labor in this direction was so satisfactory that he was selected to edit the revision, and it was then published in a large eleven hundred page volume, entitled the "General Statutes of Massachusetts," which was subsequently annotated into a code by the legislature The latter body a few months since appointed Judge Richardson and Judge P. Sawyer to revise the statutes and the supplement, and the former has expended a vast amount of labor in the work, all of which has been performed outside of, and in addition to, his labor as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury

In 1856 he was appointed Judge of the Probate Court of Middlesex county, and in 1868, on the consolidation of the offices of Judge of Probate and Judge of Insolvency, he was appointed to the consolidated office, which he held until the spring of 1872 when he resigned to accept the office of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, which he had previously filled In 1869 he declined an appointment as Judge of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, and in 1865 he published a volume entitled "The Banking Laws of Massachusetts." Last summer, while acting as Secretary of the Treasury, he prepared and published a work entitled "Practical Information Concerning the Public Debt of the United States and the National Banking Laws"

His visit to Europe at the request of Secretary Boutwell, in 1871, to negotiate a loan, and the signal success of his mission, are well remembered While in Europe he placed $70,000,000 of five per cent bonds, and purchased the same amount of old bonds, which he brought back to the United States. Secretary Boutwell has always placed a high estimate on Judge Richardson's financial ability, and it was only at his earnest request that Judge R was induced to come to Washington His appointment to succeed Secretary Boutwell will, it is believed, give general satisfaction, since his eminent fitness for the position seems to be conceded on all sides

The Coos Bay Ship Canal

We find the following in the Coos Bay News

The long talked of Lockhart Canal, connecting Coos Bay with the navigable waters of the Coquille river, is an enterprise the merits of which, at last appear to be attracting some attention, and two separate private Corporations are now formed for the construction of the same, one by citizens of Portland and another by the organization of the Scheme Mr J. C. Lockhart in connection with some other prominent men living in the same locality. The right of way being already secured by the latter company, and Mr Lockhart having gone to California in the interest of the company, has the appearance of business. The many miles of the beach which would accrue to Coos county and in fact, to the commercial interests of the coast, are almost incalculable. A canal of but a few miles, would open up an inland navigation of upwards of one hundred miles, including the river and bay It would connect the producing and consuming portion of the county, and from the moment that enterprise is completed, Coos county cannot fail to take rank as one of the first agricultural counties of the State, as it now stands ahead of any other in the shipping interest. To be sure, Portland has a greater shipping interest than Coos Bay but she drains the whole Willamette Valley while we are a country by ourselves, and our exports are exclusively the products of our own county but heretofore, we have imported produce from California or from other parts of Oregon, by way of California, while at the same time we have one of the finest agricultural valleys in the State but from the topographical formation of our country, the cost of transportation from the producing to the consuming portion has far exceeded the cost from San Francisco to the Bay, from which point freights has always been very low from the fact of vessels coming from there in ballast continually but the opening of that Canal or even of a railroad, would change all that, and in a few years, we would export grain as well as coal and lumber unless the great lumbering and coal interest should develope to a great extent We hope our capitalists will see things in their true light, and render the necessary encouragement to any company that will give the first assurance of completing either a canal or railroad connecting the Coquille with Coos Bay.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

Financial.

Monday Evening, April 21 1873

Gold in New York to-day, 104¼.

Portland Legal Tender rates, 80 buying 85 selling

Gold bars are quoted to at 806 fine

Wheat in Liverpool —Average California 11s 11 d@12s 3d, club 11s 3d@12s

The week opens with a better feeling apparently in our local business, which it is fair to presume will not be completely developed until we can obtain a permanent settled The is but little doubt that, in common instance, the times are gradually growing, better and although much complaint is yet to be had of the prevailing stringency, our bankers brokers and capitalists seem to be rather more willing to accommodate their regular customers at slightly better rates than have often been ever at in our money market for the past six months

The Wool Market

We learn that inquiry is being made by sheep raisers both up the valley and in Eastern Oregon, as well as in Washington Territory concerning the probable price of this commodity in our market during the spring many not understanding the reason of the interest current declines in prices both on this coast and at the East Owing to the fact that our State and the adjoining Territories of Idaho and Washington will have a very large surplus beyond the demand of their home mills, we must therefore look abroad for the opportunity to place this surplus

From our latest advices from Boston we gather the following as a summary statement of the condition of the market there during the week ending April 7th We quote from the Shipping List

The late receipts of Australia and other foreign are selling at less than cost, and foreign wool cannot be imported except at a loss The large purchase of domestic fleece and pulled, for some successive weeks, have materially reduced stocks, and the supply of both foreign and domestic is so completely small we might naturally look for a firmer market were it not that the trade has become so demoralized, money so scarce and high and goods dull and depressed Holders of domestic are still free sellers at the present current rates, and do not appear to be willing to run the risk of carrying any considerable stock, with the California clip so near at hand, and the prospect that the London sales in April will fix a lower basis for wool abroad It may be that we have now reached bottom, but the market has been so deceptive since January that it will be sometime before confidence is fully restored.

Miscellaneous.

A patent egg carrier being introduced in this market, is certainly a great convenience, as it avoids all danger of breaking as well as the trouble of counting, is as quickly filled as an ordinary box, is very light and is returned from this city to all points up the valley without charge, by the river steamers

The Union Pacific Railroad Company report their net earnings for January and February at $474 025, against $36 036 for the same time last year The small amount for last year was partially owing to the snow blockade

The New York Produce Exchange have adopted J. B. Beerbohm's report of the Liverpool and London markets as furnishing the most reliable quotations The prices given by this authority are generally more in accord with private advices, which follow the variations of the market more closely than is possible for those sent in the business

The stock of grain in the Chicago elevators on March 20th was 11,000 000 bushels including 2 426 631 bushels wheat, 5,093,091 bushels corn, 1 746 181 bushels oats, 902,110 bushels rye and 301 453 bushels barley

The New York city warehouses contained 621 000 bushels wheat 1,000 000 bushels corn, 742,000 bushels oats 100 000 bushels rye, and 32 000 bushels barley.

During the quarter ending March 31st the exports from New York to foreign ports embraced 377 000 bbls flour, 975 000 bushels wheat 1,085 200 bushels corn 111 700 bales cotton, 20 500,000 gallons petroleum and 132,200 tons cut meats

A striking feature of the ocean freight markets for the last few months is the large shipment of coal to Cuba, St Thomas and other West India Islands formerly supplied from England The great advance in the price of coal in Great Britain is the cause of the change

Home Produce Market

To-day furnishes no important change of rates under this head, and no transactions of a noteworthy character In wheat, it is rumored that a further decline is probable, but as no sale have changed hands at a reduced figure, we do not feel justified in giving lower rates to the public but we are confident that buyers are not desirous in relation to their indications to give large orders at current rates Oats are coming forward very slowly and are firm at the quotations last given Hay Apples are daily diminishing as to the quantity received, and prices indicating a rather decided upward tendency Other products are without material change Trade for the week seems to open with a very fair prospect when we consider the season and the fact that the bulk of the surplus products of the country have already been moved The stock of bacon in this market is quite large being, estimated at something near 25 000 pounds The holders have secured much of this at quite a low figure, and are rather confident, notwithstanding the influence of the San Francisco market and the large product of and shipments from the Western States of having it materially if not much rather stiffer than at our last review, though large orders would probably be filled here at a very reasonable figure
